Problem of Storing Food.

Whatever may be the outcome of the proposed legislation to regulate cold storage of foodstuffs, the one consideration which should be kept in mind above everything else, if it is a just law may be obtained, and it is a guide further in the enforcement of the law there need be no more trouble. How long quantities of food or foodstuffs should be kept in storage or in what volume ought not to give serious difficulty if at all, interests are in earnest about conserving people's health. It is a matter of social economy first, industrial last.

It should never be possible for articles of food to be kept in storage until they are impaled so that they may menace the lives of consumers. No article of food should be stored in a warehouse unless it is so packed as to be able to withstand the weather. It is all nonsense to say that experts in cold storage cannot tell how long each commodity may stand the process.

The purpose primarily of the cold storage system was a good one, and it was faithfully carried out. It would have a very helpful influence on the household's pocketbook and health alike. But the primary purpose was not to facilitate speculation. And the law should be so framed as to see that men do not gamble in these necessities of life, both to the physical and financial injury of the consumer.—Omaha Bee.

President of Portugal.

Senor Braga, the new president of the republic of Portugal, is an old hand at the game of revolution, but not of the militant variety. He is a teacher and professor of history and philosophy and working in that guise had as much to do in bringing about the change of government in Brazil as in the later overturn in Portugal. He is described as a quiet, pleasant, and extremely modest gray-haired man of 67, of most unassuming manners. After his election he declared as the first president of the new republic, it is said of him by Lisbon correspondents that he returned home as usual in a second class compartment car to his pretentious little house in the suburbs, quietly receiving the congratulations of his richest and humblest friends and acknowledging the plaudits and the ovations of his fellow passengers.

It is this strong man, master of himself, who has been a restraining force in keeping armed rebellion and mob tumult from such extravagant excesses as would have imperiled the success of the republican experiment. It will require extraordinary prudence and foresight to overcome the immediate financial and clerical difficulties involved in the present situation, and to bring about a religious disunion.—Philadelphia Record.

For Musicians.

Every day that we spend without learning something is a day lost.—Beethoven.

I am what I am because I was industrious. Whoever is equally sedulous will be equally successful.—J. Sebastian Bach.

If all were determined to play the first violin we should never have a complete orchestra; therefore respect every musician in his proper place.—Robert Schumann.

NORWICH SHOWS GAIN OF 3582

Report Given Out from the Census Bureau Shows this Town's Increase has been Over 14 Per Cent.—Most of the Gain was in the City, Bringing Total for Town to 28,219.

By special despatch on Thursday afternoon The Bulletin received the census report for Norwich, showing that it had made a gain in the city of 3,116, and in the town of 3,582 in the past ten years. The population of the city is 10,267, and of the town 28,219. Most of the gain has been in the city, while the per cent. of increase in the town has been 14.5. This gain in the city puts the city of Norwich ahead of New London, which the city and town are combined under the city government. At the last census New London had 27,201, and Norwich had 23,719. This has been overcome in ten years and Norwich has now 703 more than New London, though with the town it exceeds New London by over 5,000.

According to the various census reports, Norwich has gained as follows:

1800.....	3,476
1810.....	3,228

1870.....	16,453
1880.....	20,234
1890.....	23,048

There were a number of figures given out on Thursday by the census department concerning towns and cities of this state as follows:

LAUREL HILL HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Residence of Henry H. Richmond Was in Flames Before Fire Was Known—Roof Burned Off.

The first fire to amount to anything since the shortage of water occurred on Thursday morning about 10:30, when the residence of Henry H. Richmond, No. 235 Laurel Hill avenue, was discovered to be ablaze, and an alarm was sent to the fire stations by telephone, while a bell alarm was sent in from box 45.

Mrs. Edward T. Ellsworth, who lives across the street, discovered the fire about the time the alarm was being sent. She hastened to Mrs. Richmond's and informed her of the situation and directly after the alarm was given, the fire was extinguished by the high wind, the roof and garret were entirely enveloped in flames and it looked as if the house and those adjoining it would be lost.

The fire was given off from a steam boiler stationed near the Clay block and it was not long before the fire had been checked. The roof, however, is gone and the chimney fell.

The shingles on the house of George L. Collier caught fire, and the blaze was quickly put out, one of the streams being kept on that house for a while. Mrs. Richmond secured her valuables, but nothing else in the house was taken out. The firemen did excellent work, especially in the face of the handicaps. No more was absolutely necessary, and it was not long before the house was saved.

It is believed that the fire started from a defective chimney and must have been going some time before it was discovered. Much damage was done by the water and the loss will reach a good sized sum. Mr. Richmond carried an insurance, but he does not think it covers his loss. It is a two-story house with garret.

At 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon Engine company No. 2 and Truck company No. 2 were called to the house, and the fire was extinguished for a chimney fire. There was no damage of any account.

AT POLI'S.

Vaudeville and Motion Pictures.

At Poli's for the week end there is a select bill offered, which cannot help meeting with favor. There are two reels of moving pictures, which are chosen to please and they do as expected.

Clarence Rant opens the vaudeville with his slack wire act, which outclasses anything in this line seen here. He appears on the wire as the curtain goes up, sitting in a chair before a table set with silver, reading a paper. In his other acts his work is equally clever and he gets a big hand.

Wells, Moore and Young singers and dancers, provide good entertainment, while the sketch, What Would You Do? by the John R. Gordon company No. 2, were called to the house, and the fire was extinguished for a chimney fire. There was no damage of any account.

Fruit Fed Horses.

In Tasmania peaches are greatly relished by horses.

Dates take the place of the usual hay, corn, oats and bran in Arabia.

In the West Indies the green tops of the sugar cane are fed to the horses.

For long weeks in many parts of Canada windfall apples form the horses' only food.

Figs during the fig harvest form the food of the horses of Syria. They turn them to this from oats or hay.

In Egypt the khedive's best mares are fed largely on currants, and these fruit fed animals are noted for their endurance and speed.

The prevalence of somber colorings abroad is having its effect on this side of the water. Black, marine and blue de roi are the favorite tints, with a dark discreet purple.

They are hideous things, these freckles, but easy to remove. (Kintha extra strength). It's astonishing how thoroughly Kintha does the work. It makes people write such letters as this from Miss Mary L. of Jamaica Plain, Mass.:

"I thought it would be a failure, like all the rest I've tried, but, no, indeed! I had not used the whole jar when you could see the change. Now my face is free from freckles, which I could never say before."

Get a two-ounce package of Kintha (extra strength) at the half-gallon counter of The Lee & Osgood Co. and see how quickly it will remove even the worst freckles. Get your money back if it fails.

The Siamese is said to be the most delicate and expensive of all cats. It is called the royal cat because it has long been bred in the family of the King of Siam. It is a short haired cat, which looks curiously like a dog. Its coat is pug dog color and very short, firm and silky—more like a dog's than a cat's. It has black paws and nose and a twist in its tail.

Cocoa butter, well rubbed in, will fill up the hollows of the neck.
